EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

If you believe with Ben. Hill, that Jeff. Davis was not a traitor, then act with the Democratic party.

Two weeks ago last Sunday, at sunset, there was not a cloud to be seen in the sky from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. So the signal office reports. Such an occurrence must be very unusual.

Six counties in Nebraska voted solidly Republican at the late State election; not a Democratic or Greenback vote being cast in any of them for State officers. And yet no Democrats were killed.

We want to call the attention of the southern barbarians to the fact that the North has been made solid without killing a single Democrat. But then there is reason for this. The North is working out the will of God, while the South is serving the devil.

Mr. Talmage's congregation seems to have full and complete faith in their pastor, and at the late meeting, passed resolutions expressing their determination to withdraw from the Presbytery on account of what they termed the persecution of their beloved pastor.

Ben. Hill says the "bloody shirt" is a piratical flag, and that the Republicans are political pirates. That is because they were guilty of the "treason" of whipping the barbarous South with muskets a few years ago, and are going to whip them with ballots in 1880.

The Democratic Congressmen from the barbarous States are accusing their northern allies of being to blame for the blunder of the extra session which brought death to their party. Be careful, gentlemen, and remember that a house divided against itself must surely fall when the storms come.

After January 1st, 1880, the Democrats will have nineteen Governors of States and the Republicans nineteen. That is, if the Democrats do not succeed in their outrageous proceeding in Maine—conspiracy to overthrow the Republican majority in the Legislature. Of the nineteen Democratic Governors, all but three are in the barbarous States. The three exceptions are Williams, of Indiana, McClellan, of New Jersey, and Thayer, of Oregon. Of the Republican Governors, not one are in the half-civilized States. In the late elections, the Republicans have gained a Governor in California, Maine, Ohio and New York, and have lost none. This is the way civilization is booming just now.

It has been the custom of newspapers for some years past to offer premiums to subscribers, and many liberal offers have been made by publishers to all who will join their lists. The New York Tribune took the lead last year when it placed 15,000 Webster's Dictionaries before the public, but is even surpassing itself this year by making a most wonderful and inapproachable offer. To every person who will send $12 for a five-years' subscription to the Weekly the publishers will send a full set of Chambers' Encyclopædia, twenty volumes. It contains in all, by printer's measurement, 12 per cent. more matter than Appleton's Cyclopædia, which sells for eighty dollars! We don't know how the thing is done, but what the Tribune has accomplished heretofore in the same line shows that it does. The Tribune is now the great national paper of the Republicans, and whoever wants a New York paper should send for it. We print its prospectus elsewhere, and urge friends that, after their local paper, the very best way to make votes for the Republican candidate for the Presidency in 1880 is to push the Tribune's circulation now.

Watch and Work.

Although the result of the late election in New York is not as decisive as we could have wished, yet it is a great victory, and shows conclusively that the State is Republican upon national issues. The Democracy was divided, it is true, but this very division had the effect to bring out every Democratic vote to poll as much as possible for the rival candidates; therefore we may assert that the combined vote of the Democracy showed their entire strength, while many Republicans stayed at home on account of dissatisfaction with the head of the ticket. In the face of these facts, the Republican ticket, below Governor, with one exception, had majorities over the combined vote of the opposition, ranging from three to ten thousand.

With a Republican Governor, State officers and Legislature strongly Republican, a fair vote is assured, and a Republican victory in that State as certain next fall as anything can be. This is conceded by the leading politicians of both parties now; although the Democratic leaders will soon recover from their confusion and talk of Democratic victories for effect upon their followers as the new campaign opens.

But while victory is surely within the grasp of the Republicans, yet it is close enough to require earnest, faithful work to compass it. We must not count on our opponents being discouraged, and therefore indifferent. They will enter the next contest with the determination and courage of desperation, and if we do not watch all the chances carefully they may obtain success where we least expect it. They are sure of the vote of a solid South. They need only to carry two Northern States for success. They will concentrate all their energies upon some one or two points. If the attention of the whole country is centered upon New York, they may attack Pennsylvania, while we, resting as we suppose secure within our majority of nearly 60,000, might after election find that it had melted entirely away. We hope, therefore, that the Republicans of Centre county will commence at once to work for success next year. Let everything be done that is possible to redeem our county. Its redemption is possible, if we but think so, and go to work in earnest. We have urged every Republican to resolve to do his individual duty. We have urged that our party leaders in every township see to it that organized and effective local work is commenced with the year We again appeal to all true patriots to be up and doing even now. In the first issue of the Republican for 1880 our new chairman, John I. Rankin, Esq., will announce his executive committee, and we hope they will at once interest themselves to suggest for their several townships earnest, working Republicans to fill up the balance of the committees required for their township. We want none but active workers for these important positions. We must have, in the coming contest, a live committee, one that will carry out the instructions of the chairman without questions or protest. We have a good man for chairman of the county committee: we must not parylize his efforts by any want of confidence. He may make some mistakes, but if he does let him be responsible for them; and it will only be right to make him responsible for his mistakes when we put no obstacle in the way of his work and plans. We would like to see the committee in every township follow his instructions to the letter, whether they seem to be right or wrong, and let the sequel prove the wisdom of his course. Finally, we want a county committee that will work in earnest and with hope. The man who believes we are conquered before the battle commences, will be a hindrance, not a help.

The New York Tribune says it took Bayard forty-eight hours to talk himself out of the Presidential race.

New York Safe.

Some Democrats pretend to entertain the hope that their party will carry New York next year. Of course such an event might occur, but it is very improbable. Under Democratic rule, the constitution of the State has been so amended as to throw a great deal of patronage into the hands of the Governor, which, if he is so disposed, he can wield as a great power in influencing elections. Had the State been Republican, such power would not have been placed in the hands of the executive, for it is not the policy of the Republican party to enact or encourage any legislation that is likely to give unnecessary power to any official to be used for any such purpose as to control or influence votes. But in the late contest, Governor Robinson used the measure of this power against the Republicans, and next year Governor Cornell will act with angelic goodness if he fails to use the same powerful weapon in favor of law, order, loyalty and good government, against Democracy, anarchy, treason, lawlessness and murder, and if he does as we think he is quite likely to do, acting in this matter as any man with human weakness is likely to act, we would ask our Democratic neighbors what prospect there is for them in view of the fact that the parties are with all this great patronage used for the Democrats so nearly equal? It is admitted on all sides that our opponents must have with the solid, barbarous South, the State of New York in order to elect a President. They can only carry that State through the apathy of the Republican or the most blundering policy, and such mistakes are not likely to occur, for the Republican party is not the party of blunders. Their councils are controlled by wise, shrewd leaders, whom the people entertain confidence and respect.

A New York paper wants Philadelphia to suppress McMullenism and to meet out punishment to the cut-throats that are ready to carry elections at the point of the pistol. It is all very well for New York journalists to ask Philadelphia to suppress McMullens. We think they ought to do it, but when they do it, they must suppress the Democratic party. In fact, McMullen is a representative Democrat. His character represents the character of the party. It is rough like McMullen. Wherever you find thieves, roughs and half civilized people, there you will find a Democratic community. New York is the most immoral city in the country, and its vicious class furnishes the votes which elects its rulers, and they are Democrats. The southern portion of our country is terrorised; murder, robbery and arson go unchecked, and it is the solidly Democratic portion of the Republic where ignorance and Democracy flourish side by side. Take our own town of Bellefonte, and that ward which has the most intelligence, the most orderly and law-abiding citizens, where no rum shop can be found, is strongly Republican; and go where you will, where you find intemperance, immorality, a total or partial disregard of the Sabbath, the people boasting of their sin and ignorance, and there you will find a Democratic stronghold.

Jersey Butter.—Jersey Butter is all the fashion, and it has become so, mainly because the makers have kept up a uniform color through the year. using artificial color when necessary, Dairymen who wish to be in the fashion must use the Perfected Butter Color made by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. Hon. E. D. Mason, Pres. Dairy Assoc. says: "It gives the brightest and most perfect color to butter of any substance I have ever used. I know it to be, as you say, as harmless as salt, and it adds several cents per pound to the value of butter."

Kidney-Wort has proved the most effective cure for Piles and Constipation—be sure to try it.

Sectionalism.

There was a sensible remark in the conversation of Colonel Keogh, of North Carolina, reported in the Tribune yesterday, which deserves serious consideration. "If we elect a Republican President and a Republican Congress in 1880," said he, "there will undoubtedly be an end of sectionalism, intolerance and race divisions in all the Southern States." Colonel Keogh is clearly right. The existance of a compact Southern party, strong enough in alliance with a fraction at the North to control the whole Union has been the curse of the country for more than half a century. It was the only thing that sustained slavery, it fomented jealousies and anger, it brought about the civil war, it has kept alive hostile feeling since the close of the fighting, and it has prolonged the oppression of the blacks since the abolition of slavery. A sectional party, whatever the interests that bind it together, must always be incompatible with the sentiment of nationality and union.

But if the next election again prove that the Northern Democracy is no longer able by action with the Solid South to control the whole United States, we believe that the alliance which has brought so many misfortunes upon us in the past will be broken, never to be renewed. The census of 1880, and the new apportionment to follow, will transfer to the Republican Northwest a large part of the power now held by the States of the Confederacy. Never again, after 1880, will the Solid South control all but 47 of the votes needed to elect a President of the United States, and within 40 of a majority of the House of Representatives. A Democratic victory next year would prolong for some time the divisions which all good citizens now deplore; a Democratic defeat would quickly close them, because the South would see that it had no hope of prosperity and peace except in a radical change of policy. Sectionalism will disappear when no section is any longer able to force its will upon the rest of the country.

We have no fear of the combination between the South and the Northwest against the interests of the Middle and Eastern States. There is no real division of interests between the East and the West; there is none between the North and the South, except upon questions growing out of slavery and the war, and when these are settled, parties will separate without regard to geographical lines. Differences of opinion on theories of government, and conflicts upon merely temporary issues, will do no harm; they are the symptoms of a healthy condition of politics. It is only the sectional quarrel that we have cause to dread, for that keeps us two peoples. —Tribune.

A Pennsylvania Border Tale.—In the Philadelphia Weekly Press of November 29, is commenced a thrilling Pennsylvania historical romance, entitled "The Brady Brothers; or, Bald Eagle's Nest." Its scenes will be located on the West Branch of the Susquehanna during that bloody and troubled period immediately following the massacre of Wyoming, and "the great runaway." John Brady; his brave and stalwart sons, James and Samuel; Colonels Kelly and Plunkett, Queen Esther, Bald Eagle and other border celebrities of that time will figure prominently. The theme was suggested by the late Brady centennial celebration at Muncy, and is from the pen of Charles McKnight, author of "Our Western Border," "Simon Girty, the White Savage," and "Capt. Jack, the Scout."

What rum will do. A few nights ago, a man living at Ansonia, Conn., came home drunk, had some words with his wife, threw a lighted lamp at her which fell into the cradle in which their infant child was sleeping, setting fire to the clothes. The mother attempted to save the child, and her own clothes caught, burning her so that she will probably die. The child lived only a few hours.

Additional Local Matters.

Beautiful Generosity.

In last week's issue mention was made of a large sale of lands of Mr. John Curtin to John F. Fowler, Esq. In connection with this settlement of Mr. Curtin's embarrassments there was a deed of brotherly kindness which as far as our knowledge extends is quite unsurpassed. The quiet and modest way in which it was accomplished would indicate that the donors had the intention of not letting their left hands know what their right hands do; yet we cannot forbear remarking it, feeling sure that the public would deem it injustice on our part not to honor them to whom honor is due.

Before the financial panic of 1873, Mr. Curtin endorsed heavily for his nephew and son-in-law, Gen. J. I. Curtin, and, owing to the general shrinkage in values after the crash, his entire property would barely cover the amount of the endorsements. Mr. Curtin's property consisted of an interest in the iron works at Roland and five-eighteenths of the timberland that has just been sold. The remainder of the land was owned by ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin, Constans Curtin and the Roland Curtin estate, in the proportions respectively of three-eighteenths, five-eighteenths and five-eighteenths. These three remaining owners agreed to relinquish their portions of this land provided that Mr. John Curtin should still hold his interest in the iron works and that his creditors would receive this land for their entire claim, supposing this to give them about 75 cents upon the dollar. This gift of the Messrs. Curtin is neither small nor mean, as we may see by comparing with the amount just received for the entire tract. Each man's relinquishmen was in fact a small fortune. To this generous proposal they generously agreed, and to day Mr. Curtin once more stands a free man, except the debt of gratitude he will always owe. We congratulate the gentleman upon his happy release from toils so distressing, but more upon his having friends so staunch and true.

—At the late session of Court the Grand Jury made the following report:

The Grand Inquest report that they have examined the jail and find it in a very comfortable condition, being warm, clean and well ventilated. The inside walls of the jail are in a bad condition and not sufficiently strong to hold prisoners, but we do not know how it can be improved without incurring extraordinary expense, which we do not feel like recommending.

The cellar of the dwelling house portion of the jail is in a bad condition, the floor being covered with water, probably occasioned by a leak in the drain pipe, which should be repaired immediately.

We found a quantity of lumber and rubbish in the jail yard which should be removed. The ropes used for drying clothes should be taken in when not in use, and the water close should be removed to a point as far as possible from the outside wall.

We find that John Wagner, a German, who was arrested as a tramp, and against whom an indictment was sent into this Grand Jury and ignored, is still a prisoner. We believe the man to be innocent of the charge upon which he was arrested, and that in our opinion he should be released.

We find also, upon evidence produced before us, that a part of the road leading from Zion across the ridge to a point in the Jacksonville road near the residence of Daniel Grove, is in a very bad condition and should be repaired. Another part of this same road is not where originally laid out, but put upon a much steeper grade. There is a dispute between Spring and Marion twps. to as which township these portions of the road are situated in, and the supervisors of both townships refuse to repair them.

Respectfully submitted,
James F. Weaver, Foreman.

—The Watchman proposes that the prettiest girl make Mr. Newton Bailey a rocking horse! Now of course the innate modesty and bashfulness of our youth would deter us from making any suggestion to the "prettiest girl," and nothing could be farther from our mind that she would bestow a passing thought upon our wants about Christmas time, but we will venture out far enough from our secluded den, to hesitatingly propose that if some one will present Joe Furey with a soda (?) fountain, we—we might have courage enough to "divvy."

Obituary.

Felix Dale died at his residence near Houserville, Centre Co. Pa., on the 29th of November, A. D. 1879, at the age of 77 yrs. 3 mos. and 22 days. He had been a resident of the community in which he died, for a period of over forty years, and his departure seems like unto the removal of a land-mark. He had been a widower for upwards of seven years, and he deeply felt the bereavement which befell him in the death of the companion of his life, the sharer of his joys and sorrows. He was strongly attached to his family and the presence of his children, to some extent, proved a solace to his grief.

It is not proper to speak in terms of fulsome praise, in a public way, of those who have gone beyond the sphere of our temporal life, and have entered upon an existence which lies beyond the ken of our merely physical powers. He who knows the heart and sees all our actions, with their secret springs, He alone can pass judgment, whether it be favorable or unfavorable.

One thing we know from Divine revelation; namely, "That even the giving of a cup of cold water, to one of Christ's disciples, shall not lose its reward." Whilst God is just, He is also long-suffering and patient; slow to anger and plenteous in mercy; ready to forgive and to save. He has also given us the assurance that the great day of judgment will bring agreeable surprises, even to those who will stand at the right hand of the Great King. For we hear Him saying: "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was an hungered and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me; and I was in prison and ye came to me. Then shall the righteous answer Him, saying: Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? when saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? and when saw we thee sick or in prison and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them: Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matt. 25:34-40.

The editor does not attempt to make his paper a supporter of every new-fangled thing stirred up by humbug propagators, but puts them all to what spiritualists term a "scientific test." Though we have no part or lot in this matter, yet we cannot but admire the able and consistent way in which this journal is conducted; for its management commands the respect of all, whether spiritualists or not. A Democrat' Cured.—A leading Democrat of Burlington, Mr. E. M. Sutton, speaks in the highest terms of the curative power of the celebrated Kidney-Wort. It first cured him of a distressing Kidney disease, and he now uses it whenever he has any symptoms of billiousness or needs toning up. It acts efficiently on the bowls, and cures the worst cases of piles.

Poetry.

NOW.

When I am lying pale and dead,
Come not, dear friends around my bed,
And pour your loss in deafened ears
And wash my heedless face with tears.
What thrill of hope or tenderness
Will beat beneath my burial dress?
What look of gratitude arise
And lift the lid of sightless eyes?
What loving voice escapes those lips,
From which no speech or language slips?
Alas! I cannot rouse and say,
"If ye lament me I will stay."
Speak while I hear, and while I long
To feel your love is true and strong,
While peace can soothe my troubled brow,
Wait not to miss me; hold me now!

Set not your kisses on my cheek,
Nor on my mouth, too cold to speak;
And in your fruitless grief forbear
To shed that sweetness on my hair,
In life I long to feel their breath,
But what are kisses worth to Death?
Like blossoms dropped on ice and snow,
Like songs when howling tempests blow,
A wasted gift, a vain caress
That might have been a power to bless.
A longing answered all in vain,
A touch that death must needs disdain,
That might a life with joy endow,
Oh! if you kiss me, kiss me know.

Remember not when I am gone
The deeds I did or would have done,
How much I loved, how vainly strove
To find an answer in your love:
Nor weep to think what loss is yours,
Since neither life nor love endures;
Say not with tears nor cries and prayers:
"Would that we showed her tender cares,
Had patience with the faults we knew,
Clung to the heart so warm and true,
That now we weep with hopeless pain
And know will never come again."
Oh! breathe not then the useless vow;
But if you love me love me now.

Nor, standing round my wintry grave,
Too late to serve me or to save,
Fling on it all you have to give.
"At last her follies we forgive!"
An ang I might repel with scorn
Such speech of poor repentance born,
Might weep to see such Lovite pride
Pass coldly by a coffin's side;
No! if within your hearts there be
A kind but slumbering thought of me,
A memory of the vanished past,
Of hope, of peace and love at last,
A speechless prayer, a silent sense
That sometimes speaks in my defense,
That says: "Our life is not too long,
And we perhaps, were sometimes wrong."
Oh! listen to that pleading voice
And bid a living heart rejoice.
If late remorse or grief allow
Forgiveness, then forgive me now.

Our Story Teller.

MISS CAROLINE.

A Thanksgving Story.

BY ELEANOR KIRK.

"You are the torment of my life, Seth Smith. What, under the sun, moon and stars, are you forever poking about my kitchen for?" and the speaker, a pleasant-faced serving woman looked up from the pumpkin she was sifting, with an expression of countenance which quite belied the severity of her words.

"You mean Miss Caroline's kitchen," said Seth, with a grin, as he seated himself by the pine table, which he had been heard to say was "whiter and shinier than Deacon Brown's bald head, and a considerable more wholesome looking."

"I rather think you know, Huldah, why I stick round in this 'ere way," he continued; "that is you really want me to tell you the story over again, I am just as ready now as I've been any time these last twenty years."

"Oh, get out!" replied Huldah, making an unnecessary racket with her sieve against the side of the milk-pan. "Throw an armful of wood in that oven, if you want to do something. I ain't got no time to listen to stories."

Seth grinned again, and without stopping to reply—though his great mouth was eloquent with words, which Huldah might have seen, had she looked at him, were only postponed—arose and did as he was bid. Mechanically and abstractedly, he threw piece after piece of the dry, split wood into the brick oven, until Huldah, alarmed at the blaze which shot out from its mouth, thrust him quickly one side, and, with a long poker separated the burning mass.

"Well, I should like to know, Seth Smith," she exclaimed, as she finished, "what you thought you wor doing? Ask a man to help you, and if he don't set the house a-fire, 'tain't his fault."

"You're more scared than hurt, Huldah," Seth replied coolly. "What shall I do now—stir the pumpkin for you?"

"No, you won't do anything of the sort," his companion answered. "If there's one thing that I hate above another, it's to have a man fussing about my cooking."

"I made my own pie last Thanksgiving," said Seth, with unintended pathos.

"More shame for you," replied Huldah. "There worn't anybody to blame but yourself if you did, for you knew that I'd a come over and made 'em for you. All I wanted was an invitation."

"Why, I've invited you to come and stay hundreds of times," said Seth, in the same pathetic manner.

"Well, suppose you have," was the irritated response. "I should like to know how you think Miss Caroline would get along without me? I've been in this kitchen a good many years, Seth Smith, and the folks that I've served are all gone now, 'cept Miss Caroline, and I wouldn't give her the slip for a hundred men, no, not for a thousand! So, you can put that in your pipe and smoke it as quick as you're a mind to."

"That's the kind of tobacco I've been smoking ever since I can remember, Huldah," said Seth, with a comical grin, but in a minor key for all that; "but I've kinder thought that mebbe what you wouldn't do for a regiment, you might some time see your way to do for the man you know you love, Huldah, whatever you may say and——"

"Rake them coals again, Seth!" broke in Huldah, with a well-feigned interest in the oven. "At this rate, I don't believe I shall get any baking done to-day."

"I've tried, lately," Seth began again, quite ignoring the interruption, "to try and put down this feeling that there couldn't nothing come on, but I might as well try to make myself over into a handsome man, Huldah, as to stop thinking of you!"

"Well, there wor a time, Seth," said Huldah, as she stirred the sugar and spice into the golden pumpkin, and taking on a more confidential tone, "that I wor willing to own up I was tempted."

"When was that, Huldah?" inquired Seth, with a sigh, though his eyes were dancing with fun.

"When you got home from the war and had to go on crutches then for a spell," cried Huldah. "Then it seemed to me it wor my duty to take care of you; and I remember well the day I'd made up my mind to say so. I was looking up the road expecting to see you come hippity hopping down as you had been doing, when lo! and behold! there you wor as fine as a fiddle, without any crutches at all, and walking almost as spry as you do this minute."

"I give 'em up before I really ought to, Huldah," said Seth, "because I thought you hated the sight of 'em; and now I find, when it is too late, that they were my best friends. They're up in the garret now, and I'll get 'em out if you say so."

"Don't be a fool!" said Huldah, with a snap. "I just wanted you to get into that thick head of yourn that if you needed me you'd have me in spite of anybody in the created world. Stir up them coals again!"

Once more Seth did as he was told, and as he raked the glowing embers, the door opened, and Miss Caroline, the mistress of this great house and sole heiress of one of the richest estates in Massachusetts, walked into the kitchen. She might have been thirty, and even more, but she looked about twenty-three or four, with her fresh, almost childish complexion, light brown hair and beautiful gray eyes, with their long, dark, sweeping lashes. She was a little above medium height, and in face and figure was the very personification of grace and delicacy. Caroline Wyndham could never be called pretty, but she was as handsome and as proud a woman as ever walked the earth.

"So Seth is tormenting you again, is he, Huldah?" the lady inquired, laughingly. "You were so quiet down here, that I don't know but that you had forgotten all about Thanksgiving preparations!"

"Now, Miss Caroline," said Huldah, annoyed as much as she could be with the mistress she was fond of.

"I've been talking kinder serious to Huldah," Seth broke in, "but I can't see that it amounted to anything."

"Keep it up," Miss Caroline replied. "There is nothing tells in this world like determination! It is very strange that Huldah holds out so against becoming Mrs. Smith;" and now the lady brought a spoon and tasted of the cook's pumpkin mixture, which was almost ready to be poured into the pie-plates. "A little more sugar, Huldah," she continued, and then, with another laughing glance at the awkward lover, who stood with his back against the kitchen door, added: "Why, Seth, I should have been obliged to give in with half as much coaxing as Huldah had."

"There are some folks you know, Miss Caroline, who are too proud to beg," said Seth, with a quick look at the lady; "but I'm glad I ain't ashamed to hang on to what I want. Huldah has been telling me that if I'd been obliged to go on crutches a little while longer, she'd had to give in." Miss Caroline turned away, and looked out of the window, but not before Seth had seen the color fade out of her face, and a little shiver creep over her supple figure. "was down to Boston yesterday, Miss Caroline," Seth continued, carelessly.

"Well, I suppose Boston is as well as usual," the lady replied, with a poor attempt at facetiousness.

"Lively as ever," Seth, responded. "I run up to the west end to see how Colonel Lovell was getting along. I always like to call on him whenever I get a chance."

If Miss Caroline imagined that Seth was going to volunteer any more information she was certainly disappointed. After a pause of a few seconds she remarked, with apparently very little interest in what she was talking about:

"I suppose the Colonel is still improving? At least I've been told he was doing very well."

"Oh, they are all fools," Seth replied, angrily. "The Colonel can walk round his room a little with crutches, and that's something he never expected to do. Just think, twelve years, Miss Caroline, without walking a step. I tell you that last Bull Run gave him a dose."

"Isn't that better?" the lady inquired, crossly, the blood coming back to her face in a great surge. Some emotion must manifest itself, and, as sometimes happens, in cases where there has had to be great repression, anger is the first to come forward.

"That's better as far as it goes," said Seth; "and the Colonel's general health is very bad, and the doctor says if he don't have some thing to rouse him from the awful fix he's got into, he's a goner. He looks fearful, Miss Caroline. His eyes are as big as saucers, and he's as pale as a ghost."

"Well, we have all got to be ghosts some time," the lady answered, after another pause, and with an assumption of heartlessness which was utterly foreign to her nature.

"I shall be obliged to you, Seth," she continued a moment after, "if you will ask John to saddle Nero. I will be ready in ten minutes."

"You're done it, Seth Smith," said Huldah, in a rage, as her mistress walked out of the kitchen and closed the door. "Going to ride Nero? I don't believe the Old Harry himself has got a horse in his stable that'll come up to Nero for viciousness. If you'd only held your tongue she'd have helped me make some cake, and been as peaceable as you please. Now she's all worked up."

"I'm glad of it," said Seth. "It's time somebody was worked up, and if you could see the colonel you'd think so, too."

"But ain't the colonel as much to blame as Miss Caroline?" Huldah inquired; "and more, too. Didn't he break the engagement himself?"

"Yes," said Seth, "of course he did. 'Tisn't likely an honest, square-minded man like Colonel Lovell would expect a woman to stick to an engagement with a cripple for life, is it? But I'm just as sure as if I'd heard him say so, that he never thought Miss Caroline would take him at his word. She thinks he wanted to get rid of her, so there's a pair of idiots together."

Seth went out to the stable, saddled Nero, and brought him round to the front of the house. Miss Caroline had a scarlet spot on each cheek, as she walked down the hawthorn hedged path to the gate where Seth waited.

"John wasn't anywhere 'round," said Seth, apologizing, quite humbly, for doing the lady a kindness; "and so I brought the horse round myself. Shall I give you a mount, Miss Caroline?"

"Yes; thank you, Seth," she replied, springing at once to the saddle, and while her companion held the snorting and impatient Nero, Miss Caroline drew on and buttoned her gauntlet gloves.

"I don't know but this beast will be the death of you some time, Miss Caroline!" Seth remarked, as he stepped out of the way of the dangerous hoofs.

"Oh, well," the lady replied, "if he is, there's one good thing, there won't be any one to care very much about it."

This was said with a child's petulance, but the tender look in the deep, gray eyes, and round the lips, which would tremble in spite of all her efforts, touched her companion to the heart.

"Seth," she broke out again, before he could collect his wits to reply, "you are always talking to me or of me, which means the same thing, only it is vastly more disagreeable, about Colonel Lovell, as if I were in some way responsible for all that has happened to him. Now, I want to tell you one thing, and I hope you will remember it sufficiently to spare me in the future, and it is this: I am no more to blame for Colonel Lovell's being alone and unhappy either in the past or in the present time, than I am for the wounds which have made him an invalid all his years. If he had allowed me, I should have been with him, not as a duty, but because I couldn't be anywhere else in any comfort; but I could not force myself upon Col. Lovell, Seth. You have heard, of course, that he broke the engagement. I have given everybody to understand this, because I could not allow my friends to suppose that I would be mean enough to desert him in his great affliction. Since this cruel letter, Seth, by means of which he broke his promise and mine, he has never sent me a message or written me a line. Now, do you understand the case enough, Seth, to stop speaking of Colonel Lovell to me?"

These last words rang out in such a wail of anguish, that Seth's eyes filled with tears. Miss Caroline gave him no time to reply, for she took up her reins, and Nero and his rider were off like the winds. But wasn't but a few moments before she came galloping back over the meadows and through the orchard, and so up to the kitchen door.

"Where's Seth?" she asked of Huldah, reining Nero in with difficulty.

"He didn't come in again after he took the horse 'round," Huldah replied, and, before she could say any more, Nero was wheeled around and bounding off in the direction of Seth's cottage, a quarter of a mile up the hill.

All that day Miss Caroline was restless and nervous. She was obliged to return without finding Seth, and so she wandered up and down the great house without any apparent motive except to kill time, and when Huldah asked her if she wouldn't help her with the cake, she replied that there was cake enough in the house, and half an hour afterwards entered the kitchen, with her white cooking apron on, to try a new rule.

That evening when Seth came round, Miss Caroline sent for him to come to the library.

"I never thought this morning, Seth, to tell you," she began, with averted face, "that what I said at that time was in the strictest confidence. I rode back to try and find you, for I began to be worried five minutes after I left you."

"I hope you don't think I would ever do anything to hurt, Miss Caroline?" Seth replied, depreciatingly.

"I don't think you would intend to, Seth," the lady explained, "but I didn't know but your desire to do me a service might render you indiscreet. You understand now, Seth, that your lips are always to be sealed in regard to that foolishness?"

"Yes, Miss Caroline," Seth responded. "I'll never speak another word about it as long as I live, unless you give me leave," and here the interview ended.

Seth made desperate love to Huldah the remainder of that evening, every once and a while bursting out into the most unexpected fits of laughter, and these spasms were so contagious that Huldah found herself joining in, without an idea of what she was laughing about.

"Say, Huldah," Seth remarked, just as he was leaving, "I want you to promise me one thing."

"I'll see," said Huldah.

"I want you to give me your sacred word of honor that if Colonel Lovell and Miss Caroline ever get married, you'll marry me the same day."

"Lor, yes!" Huldah laughed, "and I'll do better than that, Seth. I'll promise to be your wife the day Colonel Lovell steps foot into this house, or the day Miss Caroline steps foot in his."

"All right," said Seth, "but suppose he is brought in, instead of stepping in?"

"I don't care a hang how he comes," Huldah replied, "but that day shall see you and me one, and I'm safe enough in promising it, too, Seth Smith."

Seth walked off still laughing, and Miss Caroline, as she sat before the library fire, felt more alone than ever. Within the past five years her father, mother and sister had been taken away by death, and to night of all nights since these terrible events, she seemed to herself most wretched and lonely.

The next day but one was Thanksgiving, and Miss Caroline nerved herself to meet this holiday with all the courage and philosophy she could bring to her aid. There used to be great feasting and merriment in the Wyndham mansion on such occasions, but the mistress of this beautiful home could not bring herself yet to open its doors for the old-fashioned hospitalities.

"I was in hopes you wouldn't cry to day," said Huldah, Thanksgiving morning, as her mistress entered the dining room. "Goodness me! my muffins are as light as feathers, and the coffee is unusually good, and seems to me this last ham we cut beats the rest all holler! Now, I'm going to broil you a nice bit of tenderloin. Say, don't cry—there's a dearie!" and Huldah patted Miss Caroline's shoulder and wept herself, as she tried to comfort her mistress. "You've got a heap to be thankful for, Miss Caroline, after all," Huldah added, with a little protest in her voice.

"Yes, I know it," replied Miss Caroline, wiping her eyes. "I have muffins and ham to be thankful for, and a little more money and land than my neighbors," she added, bitterly, and then, "I don't mean that I haven't anything, Huldah, for as long as I have you I can't be quite desolate."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Huldah, "I've got a lump in my throat as big's a loaf of bread!" and, as she left the dining room, "you know, Miss Caroline, that when I get to sniffling there ain't no stopping me."

Miss Caroline went to church that morning, and as she walked up the aisle to the Wyndham pew, there were no traces of tears on her face, and her bearing was as proud and queenly as if, as many thought, her wealth and position entirely satisfied her. After the service was over she greeted her friends and acquaintances kindly, and then got into her carriage and was driven quickly home.

"Perhaps it would have been better," she moaned to herself, in her loneliness, "to have taken somebody home to dinner with me. But how could I make them happy with this heavy heart of mine?"

When the carriage stopped at the front gate, Seth was on hand to open the door.

"Good sermon, Miss Caroline?" he asked.

"I don't know, Seth," she answered, "for I believe I didn't hear a word of it."

"That's a pretty way to go to church!" her companion laughed, and added, carelessly, "Say, Miss Caroline, you've got company to dinner to day."

"How many?" the lady asked, in an absent sort of a way.

"Only one, Miss Caroline," Seth replied, "and he's making himself easy before the library fire. You needn't be in a hurry, if you've got any fixing up to do."

Just here Seth dodged around the corner of the house, and when Miss Caroline called upon him to come back he didn't reply, and the lady walked into the house like one in a dream. Very slowly and deliberately she removed her things, and then stepped into the parlor, which room communicated with the library. The folding-doors were partly open, and the first thing that met the lady's longing eyes were a pair of crutches standing in an angle of the mantel. A little further; and there, in her favorite lolling chair, reclined the man whom all those long years she had so faithfully loved. Her step was as light as a fawn's, but Colonel Lovell heard it, and was prepared for her coming. Stepping behind his chair, Miss Caroline placed a tender hand on each of his cheeks, and kissing his forehead said, softly, between a sob and a laugh:

"My dear, I thank God you have come at last."

Kneeling beside him with her fair head on his breast, and his loving arms around her, the Colonel said: "Seth brought me to dine with you. Did you know it my darling?"

"And you shall never, never go away," Miss Caroline replied; "until you are strong and well again, and take me with you."

"Shall I not?" he answered. "Do with me what you please, and God knows I shall be satisfied."

Just here there was a knock on the door, and Seth and Huldah entered arm in-arm.

"I just come up," said Seth, with his usual promptitude; "to tell you that Huldah and me wor going to be spliced this afternoon, and to ask you if the parson might 't just as well kill two birds with one stone?"

Miss Caroline lifted a blushing, laughing face to her lover's but replied quite clearly: "It seems to me that it would be an excellent plan."

"Is it not a shame?" the colonel began, but a little hand was placed over his mouth and the sentence was never finished.

"Well, Seth has come it over me this time awful," said Huldah; "but I gave my word, and I can't go back on it."

"You were wiser than I, Seth," said Miss Caroline; "and I shall be grateful to you as long as I live."

"And I," said the Colonel.

That evening there were two weddings at the Wyndham mansion.

Did the Colonel get well?

Of course he did.

Sorghum Culture Up Again.

A Washington dispatch to the N. Y. Tribune says: Dr. Collyer, the Chemist of the Agricultural Department, said that he had read the dispatch printed in the Tribune of Friday in regard to sugar raising, and was wondering how it is that people are so hard to be convinced. "If they will give me," said he, "ten acres of ground to experiment on next season I will return twenty tons of raw sorghum sugar fully equal to the best raw cane sugar or forfeit my reputation. That is two tons to the acre and is a much better result than they reach on the average in Louisiana with the sugar cane.

"The corn crop of Illinois, for example," said Dr. Collyer, "is worth about $75,000,000 annually. If they will devote one-tenth of the acreage to sorghum of the variety best suited to the latitude, they can raise sugar in amount equal to our whole annual importation, which is about $100,000,000 worth, and even this will only equal 50 per cent. of the most favorable of my experiments. The secret, now that the method of crystallization is understood, lies simply in the time to gather the crop, and in this respect my experiments are complete and conclusive."

"What is the total cost of production, doctor?"

"Well, on that point I cannot speak so confidently; but I see no reason why it should exceed 3 cents per pound. Raw sugars now cost a fraction more than 6 cents a pound, but about 45 per cent. of that is for duties. We can certainly raise sugar from sorghum much cheaper than we can buy it abroad."

"How about the extent of territory adapted to the growth of sorghum?"

"There is the great advantage. All through this central belt of States and well into the North and South, sorghum can be grown with ease. I would not, for example send the Early Amber to South Carolina but would select a variety adapted to that climate. The advantage of the Early Amber, which is the species from which the success in Illinois has been gained, is that it matures before the season gets too far past. In Louisiana, you know, it takes nine and sometimes twelve months of close attention to the sugar-cane crop to bring it to a success. The cane, anyway, is not indigenous to Louisiana, but is an exotic."

FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR.

The Leading American Newspaper.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE FOR 1880.

During the coming Presidential year THE TRIBUNE will be a more effective agency than ever for telling the news best worth knowing, and for enforcing sound politics. From the day the war closed it has been most anxious for an end of sectional strife. But it saw two years ago, and was the first persistently to proclaim, the new danger to the country from the revived alliance with the Solid South and Tammany Hall. Against that danger it sought to rally the old party of Freedom and the Union. It began by demanding the abandonment of personal dislikes, and set the example. It called for an end to attacks upon each other instead of the enemy; and for the heartiest agreement upon whatever fit candidates the majority should put up against the common foe. Since then the tide of disaster has been turned back; every doubtful State has been won, and the omens of National victory were never more cheering.

THE TRIBUNE'S POSITION.

OF THE TRIBUNE'S share in all this, those speak most enthusiastically who have seen most of the struggle. It will faithfully portray the varying phases of the campaign now beginning. It will earnestly strive that the party of Freedom, Union and the Public Faith may select the man surest to win, and surest to make a good President. But in this crisis it can conceive of no nomination this party could make that would not be preferable to the best that could possibly be supported by the Solid South and Tammany Hall.

THE TRIBUNE is now spending more labor and money than ever before to hold the distinction it has long enjoyed of THE LARGEST CIRCULATION AMONG THE BEST PEOPLE. It secured, and means to retain it, by becoming the medium of the best thought and the voice of the best conscience of the time, by keeping abreast of the highest progress, favoring the free discussion, hearing all sides, appealing always to the best intelligence and the purest morality, and refusing to cater to the tastes of the vile or the prejudices of the ignorant.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The distinctive features of THE TRIBUNE are known to everybody. It gives all the news. It has the best correspondents, and retains them from year to year. It is the only paper maintaining a special telegraphic wire of its own between Washington and Washington. Its scientific, literary, artistic and religious intelligence is the fullest. Its book reviews are the best. Its commercial and financial reviews are the most exact. Its type are the largest; and its arrangement the most systematic.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE

is by far the most successful Semi-Weekly in the country, having now more than the circulation of any other in New York. It is specially adapted to the large class of intelligent professional and business readers outside from New York to depend on our papers for the daily news, who cannot lose what the editorials, correspondence, book reviews, scientific matter, lectures, literary miscellany, etc., for which THE TRIBUNE is famous. Like the weekly, it contains sixteen pages, and is in convenient form for binding.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE

remains the great favorite of our substantial country population, and has the largest circulation of any Weekly issued from the office of a Daily paper in New York, or so far as we know, in the United States. It revises and condenses all the news of the week into readable shape. Its agricultural department is more carefully conducted than ever, and it has always been considered the best. Its market reports are the official standard for the Dairymen's Association, and have long been the recognized authority on cattle, grain and general country produce. There are special departments for the young, and for household interests; the new handiwork department, already extremely popular, gives unusually accurate and comprehensive instructions in knitting, crocheting and kindred subjects, while poetry, fiction and the humors of the day are all abundantly supplied. The verdict of the ten of thousands of old readers who have returned to it during the past year is that they find it better than ever. Increasing patronage and facilities enable us to reduce the rates to the lowest point we have ever touched, and to offer the most amazing premium yet given, as follows:

AN AMAZING PREMIUM.

To any one subscribing for the WEEKLY TRIBUNE for five years, remitting us the price, $10, and $2 more, we will send Chambers' Encyclopædia, Unabridged, in fourteen volumes, with all the revisions of the Edinburgh edition of 1859, and with six additional volumes, covering American topics not fully treated in the original work, the whole embracing, by actual printers' measurement, twelve per cent. more than Appleton's Cyclopædia, which sells for $80! To the 1,000 readers who procured from us the Webster Unabridged premium, we need only say that while this offer is even more liberal, we shall carry it out in a manner equally satisfactory. The following are the terms in detail:

For $12. Chambers' Encyclopædia. A Library of Universal Knowledge, 14 vols., with additions on American subjects, 6 separate vols., 20 vols. in all, substantially bound in cloth, and the Weekly Tribune 5 years, to one subscriber.

For $18. Chambers' Encyclopædia, 20 vols., as above, and the Semi-Weekly Tribune 5 years.

For $18. Chambers' Encyclopædia, 20 vols., as above, and ten copies of the Weekly Tribune one year.

For $27. Chambers' Encyclopædia, 20 vols., as above, and twenty copies of the Weekly Tribune one year.

For $26. Chambers' Encyclopædia, 20 vols., as above, and the Daily Tribune two years.

The books will in all cases be sent at the subscriber's expense, but with no charge for packing. We shall begin sending them in the order in which subscriptions have been received on the 1st of January, when certainly five, and perhaps six, volumes will be ready, and shall send, thenceforward, by express or mail, as subscribers may direct. The publication will continue at the rate of two volumes per month, concluding in September next.

To the Farmers and Horticulturists.

A Remarkable Clubbing Offer.

By special arrangement the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN and the Rural New Yorker which is a 16-page illustrated agricultural weekly; will both be sent to one address, one year, for ONLY $3.80. Every subscriber who accepts this offer will also receive a package of the plants and seeds of the free, which itself is valued at $2.50! By this offer we have secured to our readers two of the best papers, and a selection of valuable seeds total value, $6.30, which we agree to send for the remarkably low price named above. A fully illustrated description of the seeds and plants will be sent to all who apply for a sample copy of the Rural New Yorker, New York City. Below we give a condensed list of the seeds and plants that are offered:

First. "The Cuthbert Raspberry"—TWO plants. E. P. Roe says of it: "As far as I can now judge, it seems to me the most valuable Raspberry, and I have planted five times as many of this variety as of all others put together."

Judge Parry says: "The Cuthbert is far ahead of all the others in abundance of fruit, size of berry and hardiness."

T. S. Force says: "No Raspberry can be more highly recommended for general purposes."

Charles Downing says: "I consider it the most promising Raspberry before the public, as far as tested."

J. T. Lovett says: "It is the perfect Raspberry."

It is at once the highest-flavored, largest, most prolific and HARDY variety of Red Raspberry known.

Second. "The Telephone Pea." The new English Pea. At present held in England at $80 per bushel at wholesale.

Third. "Mold's Ennobled Oats." Mr. Mold, of England, is the introducer of this variety. On the farm of the Rural New Yorker it yielded, last season, at the rate of 85 bushels per acre.

Fourth. "Abies Sibirica," one of the hardiest and most beautiful evergreens known.

Fifth. Seeds of Magnolias, Soulangeana, Lennei, Acuminata, Fraseri, Glauca and Umbrella.

Sixth. Seed from Seedlings of the beautiful and new Iris Kæmpferi. Hardy.

Seventh. Seeds of the splendid Pipe Vine, Aristolochia Sipho. Hardy.

Eighth. Seed of the Man-Root, Ipomœa leptophylla. Hardy.

Ninth. Seeds of Bebbs New Aquilegias—bearing the largest flowers of any of the Columbines.

Tenth. "Hybrid Pentstemons." New, beautiful, hardy.

N. B.—The above rare collections of seeds are estimated to be worth over $2.50. Many of them cannot at present be purchased. 11-45-tf

Additional Locals.

—Handsome balls of extra fine perfumery, at Zeller's.

—Is a man in-spirited or down-spirited when he's drunk?

—Now its "O, the rain, the beautiful rain!" that the farmers sing.

—Millheim has one well attended school—that taught by Mr. Eisenuth.

—Does it not look lively? Thirteen civil engineers in Snow Shoe last week.

—The treasurer's office, in the Court House, has been improved by having a new floor laid in it.

—Lieb & Co.'s planing mill has been weatherboarded, and its appearance is thereby much improved.

—His Honor, Judge Mayer, was seeking health at the Hot Springs, Arkansas, lately. His wife accompanied him.

—That big shooting contest between the marksmen of Huntingdon and neighboring counties failed to take place.

—Mrs. Holt's suit for $25,000 against the Snow Shoe company has been compromised by the payment by the company of the sum of $8,000.

—It is reported the Pennsylvania Railroad Company are about to erect a new wheel foundry at Altoona, the capacity to be 125 wheels per day.

—The board walk between the Episcopal church and the gas works is in a ruinous condition, and affords a first-class opportunity for the breaking of bones.

—It is a question that philosophy has not yet solved why the small boy invariably begins to play marbles whenever all out-doors becomes cold, muddy and damp.

—McCoy & Linn's iron works are crowded with orders, and they are hindered by scarcity of water. As it is, Mr. Eddy has almost to hitch lightning to that facile pen of his.

—It has taken Penn Bigony two weeks to mend the injuries to his hand, that he received when he last went down to Lock Haven. W. P had better stay at home, hereafter.

—It took by actual count thirty men and boys to see that two urchins played marbles fairly last Wednesday morning. Thus the unfettered mind seeks the noblest employment.

—Shareholders of the Huntingdon & Broad Top railroad stock reflect over their investment very comfortably. The stock has recently jumped from $4 to $11.50 per share, and bids fair to stay there.

—It is said that it is the fashion of several little fellows in town to carry pistols and point them at their playmates. Better stop it boys, or you will give us material for a "didn't-know-it-was-loaded" obituary.

—The piteous appeals from the quillist at the other end of printing-house row have at last been heard, and the lock-up has had a daub of paint put on it. Hope they all enjoy the improved scenery around there.

—Mrs. Jennie Bright is now visiting her sister Mrs. Edmund Blanchard. Mr. Joseph Bright, the husband of this lady, is one of the most extensive and successful merchants in Pottsville. He has a number of hardware stores through the coal regions near that town.

Court Proceedings.

The latter part of last week was occupied by a civil suit—Jacob Walker vs. Lauth, Thomas & Co. Mr. Walker had been engaged by Mr. Lauth to haul wood to furnish the Howard Iron Works with charcoal. By this arrangement about 1500 cords of wood were cut and hauled by Mr. Walker. When the last settlement was made, a balance of about $41 were due the plaintiff, by the Iron Co.'s account The sum of $55 was offered Mr. Walker in settlement, but this was refused by him and he brought suit against the company. Beaver & Gephart were the counsel for plaintiff and Messrs Furst and Hoy for the Howard Iron Co. The jury, after short deliberation, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff of $508. The costs follow the verdict. It is said this case will go to the Supreme Court.

—We very much enjoyed a pleasant call last Saturday from Mr. Robert Cassidy, of Canton, Ohio. Mr. Cassidy is the brother of Mrs. Geo. Bayard and an old Bellefonter, having learned the printing trade in this town during his youthful years. His friends throughout the county are not few in number. Mr. Cassidy is a whole-souled man, full of good humor and pleasantry—a man well deserving of the measure of abundant prosperity with which we understand he has met during his sojourn in the Buckeye State. The "Ohio Idee," however has not been one of his acquirements; for he is still stalwart for good old Keystone Republicanism.

—Beck, the barber, is quite a connoisseur in musical instruments. Almost every time we go in there he is fingering some new melody machine. On some instruments he has become quite expert. Some folks have just a little idea that Beck employs this means to induce customers to his shop. Whether this is so or not, they all seem pretty well satisfied, for they always go in the second time, and then regularly.

—Col. W. W. Brown has again embarked on the sea of journalism. His latest venture—the Jewell County Republican, has just reached us, and a good-looking, readable sheet it is. It is published at Jewell City, Kansas, under the firm name of H. C. Brown & Co. W. W. Brown is the editor and Homer does the locals. We desire for their venture large success, such as the undoubted ability of the editors merits.

—Many of our towns-people and all who partook of the hospitality of the Mountain House, Cresson, at the last printers' picnic, will be interested in learning that Colonel E. J. Unger, the successful manager of that popular hotel for several seasons, has resigned, Mr. W. D. Tyler, at present superintendent of the Logan House, Altoona assumes the charge.

—Our water works are undergoing wonderful transformations. That ugly smoke-stack has been cleared away, and the smoke from the flue boiler is conducted into the large chimney. When the paint all gets dry we will make an investigation and tell our readers what a beautiful place the water works have become.

—If the big sisters in town want their brothers to stop smoking they had better exert their influence upon Harry Green, to induce him to stop selling cigars. While he continues to sell such excellent cigars and cigarettes, the attractions of smoking will continue irresistible.

—The Y. M. C. A. reading room is in possession of one volume of Headley's "History of the Great Rebellion," but the second volume of this work is wanting. Any one having the second volume will do a praiseworthy and benevolent thing by donating it to the reading room, thus making their list complete.

—In the Presbyterian congregation of this place cottage prayer-meetings have been instituted and they will probably continue through the winter. They are held every Tuesday evening at seven o'clock, the last one being at the house of Mrs. Wm. P. Wilson.

—Rev. Mr. Biggert telegraphs to his mourning friends in this locality that, so far as he knows, he is not dead but quite as well as ever, if not in better health. We had a notion Rumor could not kill the soldier-preacher so easily.

—Mr. Frank L. McCollum, a former proprietor of the Bush House, but now in the employ of the Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia railroad, has been in town for the past few days.

—Bellefonte's bon ton smoke Harry Green's bon bon cigars, of which are spoken many a bon mot.

Prepare for the Holidays.

We are now on the eve of the festival season of the year, when every one expects to indulge more deeply than ever in the good things obtainable around us. Many will at this season obtain for their friends beautiful articles which are pleasing to the eye as well as being of practical use. But first of all will this be a season of feasting; we will address ourselves to pleasing the palate and to building up our bodily wasting-away in as generous a manner as it lies in our power. Beautiful tables, delicate dainties, inviting viands, are the expectation of us all. Now, of course, every one desires to get the greatest amount possible, and of the very best quality obtainable for their money. But this is no easy thing to do; in the first place, because the general rise in prices has advanced the price of groceries considerably, and secondly, because adulterations are so largely practiced by manufacturers that it is a difficult matter to obtain a pure article, even of the staples. Notwithstanding the difficulties surrounding the case, we are happy to say that they have been surmounted by Sechler & Co. At their store a little money will go a great ways, and all that you buy is of the purest and cleanest kind. In explanation, we would say that Messrs. Sechler & Co. had the means and sagacity to lay in their holiday stock of such articles as do not quickly become the worse for age before the late advance, and they take the greatest care in their purchases, to insure the obtaining of a pure article. At this store can be obtained everything needful for the table and pleasant to the taste. Here you can buy the stone and glassware with which to set the table, and something for each dish, and to meet the taste of every guest. Tea, coffee and sugar, fish and meats, the juiciest of beef, flour of the finest quality, potatoes and vegetables, both fresh and canned, crackers and cakes of every kind—in fact, everything that the most ingenious cook might prepare for her table. Confectionary, too, we'll want for the little ones; that you may also obtain here. None but the very best kept for sale. But we need not make further suggestions; each one will have his wants, and whatever they be, they can all be supplied at the store of Sechler & Co.

—Teachers and all friends of education will be interested in learning that the thirty-third annual session of the Centre County Teachers' Institute will be held in the Court House, Bellefonte, commencing on Tuesday, Dec. 23d, and continuing until the following Friday evening. An interesting and comprehensive programme has been prepared, and able speakers secured to address the teachers and all others who will take this opportunity for improvement. The day sessions will be devoted to instruction in various branches and the best method of teaching them, to discussions of educational subjects, and to asking and answering practical questions in reference to subjects that present themselves to the teacher in his every day-experience in the school room. The evening sessions will given to popular lectures. A full programme will be published at the time of the Institute's meeting.

—How daintily and with what timidity the local of the Curtin organ ventures on the sea of slang! He actually brought himself to the pitch of using the word "boom" last week, but immediately a feeling of shame comes over him, for he covers his blushing face with dainty fingers and asks the public forgive him for using a "political vulgarity," but he never, no never, will again be so obscene. That is seldom ever. Stick to it, Newton, but now don't again trifle with our feelings of propriety.

—Charles Robinson, the Milesburg tinner, has the prettiest house in the town. He moved into it recently, and is now enjoying the comforts of his pleasant, cottage-like home. The story goes that one of Charley's friends in the old country was so kind as to leave this fleeting world, and his portion of the good things came to the worthy tinner.

—Somebody who thinks he knows all about the weather, predicts a cold spell about the middle of this month, and extremely cold weather about the last of January. So you need not begin to shiver for a couple of weeks yet.

—There will be fifty-three Thursdays and Fridays in 1880. Wonder does the year leap on either of these days.

—Bellefonte hunters are said to be outstripping their brethren in the woods.

Howard Letter.

It is not because something is not in the habit of taking place here that your correspondent has been so long silent, but rather from a feeling of delicacy in selecting just what events to write about.

The burning of the buildings at the Howard Furnace, on the 15th of last July, seemed to threaten serious results to the business of the place. The ruins were still smoking, however, when the proprietor, Mr. Lauth, made the most vigorous preparations for rebuilding. In a surprisingly short space of time, the buildings were completed and the furnace in blast again. Preparations are now nearly completed for putting an old stack in blast which has been standing idle for thirty years. It is expected that this stack will be in blast by the holidays.

Mr. Lauth is also instrumental in inaugurating the building of a new Roman Catholic church near his store. The frame of the building is up, and it will be rapidly pushed to completion. This will afford religious facilities to many, which they have not heretofore enjoyed.

A notable event of Thanksgiving day, was the marriage of Miss M. Belle, daughter of Samuel F. Kline, Esq., one of our merchants, and niece of ex-Sheriff Kline, of Bellefonte, to Mr. Harry T. McDowell, of Nittany Valley. A number of friends from Bellefonte, Nittany Valley, Beech Creek and Tyrone, were present. Rev. J. Benson Akers, A. M., pastor of the M. E. Church, officiated, and after a sumptuous repast and an enjoyable social occasion, the newly-married couple accompanied by their attendants, Mr. Harry Henderson and Miss Alice Cooke, left on the afternoon train, en route for a visit to their friends in the West. A large number of friends accompanied them to the depot to shake hands and wish them bon voyage.

The Methodists will hold their quarterly meeting here January 3d and 4th, 1880, when the presiding elder, S. C. Swallow, is expected to be present and spend the Sabbath.

A Wonderful Record.

Myriads of so-called "specifics" and "cures" for Rheumatism have already been brought before the public, and many of them have even been endorsed by the certificates of respectable and prominent citizens, who have derived benefit from such preparations. There is no doubt that a great many of these "Liniments," "Oils," etc., so widely advertised and freely recommended for Rheumatism and painful complaints of a similar nature, have genuine merit and will relieve certain types of the complaints named; but when Rheumatism, Neuralgia and kindred diseases have become chronic and threaten serious results, you may rest assured that they will help but very little. Although not recommended as "infallible," the peculiar qualities of ST. JACOBS OIL especially adapt it to those cases which may be termed "chronic" and which have previously withstood all known "specifics" as well as the precriptions of the best physicians.

We would mention, as an example, the case of Mr. A. Heilman, editor of the Pittsburgh Republican, who suffered with Rheumatism for two years. After vainly using all the best recommended remedies and exhausting the skill of the most experienced physicians without even temporary relief, it required only two bottles of ST. JACOBS OIL to effect a permanent cure. Mr. C. Hanni a well-known citizen of Youngstown, Ohio, secured for his wife, who for twelve years had been a constant sufferer from Neuralgia in the head, the services of the ablest physicians in the land, but they were unable to do anything for her; half a bottle of ST. JACOBS OIL cured her. Mr. Wm. Reinhardt, Elmore, Wis., reports the case of a neighbor who for twenty-four years had suffered so terribly with Rheumatism that, at times, he could hardly move around; a few bottles of ST. JACOBS OIL cured him. "To cap the climax," however, Mr. A. Neiger, of Taylorville, Pa., writes that his mother, who had been a continual sufferer with Rheumatism for the past thirty years, used one bottle of ST. JACOBS OIL and was immediately relieved of all pain. These are results which truly deserve to be brought to public notice, but they are not exceptions, as will be seen by the numerous other certificates from all parts of the United States. It should be the duty of every one to call the attention of his suffering friends and neighbors to this wonderfully efficacious preparation, especially as the low price of 50 cents a bottle places it within the reach of all persons, rich and poor.

A GRAND CHRISTMAS GIFT—THE NEW DOMESTIC BIBLE.—This splendid royal quarto edition of the Bible is made self-explaining, being a complete library of the Holy Scriptures, and contains, in addition to the Old and New Testaments, Apocrypha, Concordance and Psalms, and nearly 2,000 illustrations and 36 full page engravings; and 115 additional features, the most important of which are a Bible dictionary, history of the books of the Bible, history of religious denominations, history of nations, cities rivers, lakes, birds, beasts, reptiles, insects, trees, fruits and flowers of the Bible, 100,000 marginal references, marriage certificate, family record and a photograph album. Printed with large, clear type, on paper of first-class quality. Size of pages, 17½x12½ inches. The work is superbly bound in morocco, massive raised panel gilt edge and back, and was sold two years ago at $15 per copy.

The plates alone cost $11,000. We warrant this Bible to be as good as those sold for $15 in any book store. A special offer! To introduce our Bibles we agree, upon the receipt of $1. to pay the postage and other expenses, to send any reader of this paper a copy of the Holy Bible, with a superb work of art, produced in ten beautiful colors, and richly illustrated, "The Lord's Prayer." This is a rare combination and a big field for agents. This offer is good for 60 days only, and may not appear again. We send three copies for $2.75. Money may be sent at our risk in a plain letter. Order now, and address, N. W. HUNT, Philadelphia, Pa.

"GENERAL GRANT'S TOUR AROUND THE WORLD."—This is the title of a new book by L. T. Remlap, and contains a full description of General Grant's tour. After an absence of two years, the General has returned to our shores. During this period he has visited every European capitol, and seen with his own eyes the people of every nation. Everywhere he has been welcomed by rulers and people alike, in a manner and splendor and fervor of hospitality which have been rightly felt by the mass of the American people as not merely a compliment to the General and Ex-President, but as a gratifying evidence of good will toward us as a people.

MOODY AND SANKEY have made an impression in this and other lands equal to Wesley, Whitfield, Luther, and others of the past. Although tens of thousands of persons have already heard one or more discourses explanatory of the truths of the Sacred Scriptures, yet thousands have been denied the opportunity of sitting beneath the voice of the great Evangelist of the Nineteenth Century. We are also aware that thousands of volumes of Mr. Moody's Sermons have been sold, and a steady demand continues. Each of these volumes are good, and are worthy of the patronage they have received. This volume does not compete in any way with any previous works. It is generally known that for nearly two years Mr. Moody has been doing but very little evangelical work, giving his time almost exclusively to study of new subjects and new sermons, and in response to the united invitation of the Evangelical Pastors and laymen of Cleveland, he, with Mr. Sankey, commenced a series of Revival Meetings, similar in character to those previously held in Great Britain and the United States, and the result has been far beyond expectation.

—Eagleville young folks deserve commendation. A very successful literary society is in operation in that place and is well sustained. It bears the pleasantly-sounding name of "Liberty Literary Circle."

—It sounds fishy, but it is told that a Mifflin county mill was stopped recently, by eels clogging up the chambers of the turbine wheel.

—Mrs. Carrie Hepburn, who has of late years been residing with her husband in Japan, lately arrived in Lock Haven, her old home.

Pulling at the Halter.

Your correspondent, Mr. S. E. Swift, asks for a cure. Without great experience in handling horses, I have found diversion a valuable principle in dealing with them, and this way cured an obstinate "halter puller," just as he describes. I took a good, well-twisted cord, slightly thicker than a lead pencil, strong enough to bear some strain, and yet not so large as to prevent it stinging a little, and of the sufficient length, passed it under the tail, twisting it double to secure a pull, as it ran over the back and under the saddle, and then an end through each bit-ring, making there a simple slip-knot, which would give at once upon tension, still keeping the cord in the ring, and running it beyond, tied it tightly to the hitching post. I thus had him in fact tied up to the post by the tail. Then I tied him up by the bridle rein, shorter than by the cord, making the tie to the post with a slip-knot, which would give upon the least tug, and stepped aside to see the result.

The fault of pulling is one of education, I believe. The horse, having at some time been hurt while hitched by the bridle, fearing repetition, has learned, as he supposes, the cause of his injury to lie in the being hitched, and so to avoid the repetition of the injury, he deliberately tugs at the hitching strap until it breaks. Accepting this idea and the theory that to make his tug the source of punishment at some other point, the application of the mode I followed is seen.

The result was, so soon as left to himself, he began to pull, the bridle slipped loose quietly, and before he got to the end, as he supposed, he brought up sharply against the now tightened cord, which, stinging him severely, yet not cutting the skin under the tail, made him spring forward and away from "a fire in the rear." I repeated it by tying him up by the bridle, but I had to "back" him the second time, and within 15 minutes, I couldn't force him back, nor would he stir so as to tighten the bridle rein, although I flirted an umbrella and threw a robe in his face. He never again, while I knew him,—for five years after,—pulled on his halter. I have no doubt this mode, in repeated lessons, will cure any horse of the fault. It is true education. Respectfully yours,

A. S.

Wintering Bees.

It is estimated by our best apiarians that one half of all the honey bees in the United States perish in the winter season, and no one has yet been able to discover a remedy for this serious evil. The cause is cold weather, when the hives are left unprotected on their summer stands and other troubles when placed in a winter bee house or a cellar. Very mild winters will, in the latter case, cause the bees to be very uneasy, and many die in their efforts to get out of their hives. Then a long, protracted cold winter will cause great mortality even in houses and cellars, and in some cases the result is quite unaccountable. Indeed the minds of bee keepers are now strongly exercised over the question, "How to winter bees successfully." When the hives are protected by an outer box, without top or bottom, and slipped over the hives, and large enough to admit a packing of chaff, fine hay or straw, two or three inches thick on all sides of the hives, leaving the passage way open, bees may be left to winter on their summer stands, and as safely as in any other place, if the hives be well populated.

The Model Railway.

There is no link in the chain of railway across the American continent, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans, that has played so directly an important part in that great continental railroad, as the link of five hundred miles composing the Chicago & North-Western Railway, from the inter-continental metropolis —Chicago—to the Missouri river at Omaha.

In starting westward from Chicago, it was the pioneer to connect with the Union Pacific Railway; it virtually made that road practicable, and was substantially the father of it. It thus earned its well deserved title, "The Old Pioneer." That it in a measure exhausted itself financially in its rapid and forced construction across the then unsettled but rich prairies of Illinois and Iowa, accounts for the fact that it was for some time as its latter day and would-be rivals smilingly put it, "a streak of rust." Yet its history, on a review, shows it to have ever been as to time and to absence of accidents, a "Cunard line" for safety, speed and regularity at terminal arrivals. This may be accounted for from its having less gradients and curvature than its new competitors to Council Bluffs, at the same time being the shorter inside line. It started its trains last from termini and arrived first. It has ever been the most accomodating for the through passenger. This much for it past history.

The last two or three years, in its roadway, its tail, equipment, has witnessed the most wonderful change of any road in the east or west. It is now the First-Class Railroad; second to none, the equal, we think the superior, of any, which justly entitles it to the appellation, The Model Railroad. Gravel ballast, white oak ties, steel rails, stone culverts, iron bridges, first-class engines, coaches that are fury and elegant for comfort, having Miller couplings and Westinghouse steam brakes, and attached to each train is one of those marvels of splendor, the Pullman Palace Hotel cars, in which the traveler eats and sleeps in more luxurious apartments than old world potentates ever dreamed of. The matchless track, the scientific equipment, has won for this road, for its ease and comport that mead of praise, the triumph of art in railway travel. Its praises should be ever sung in the far Orient, and especially those near lands that owe so much to the continental railroad—Colorado, Nevada and California, and the distant Occident—that all may know of its well deserving of the public's patronage. Quite in place will it be here to say, that that much-traveled, observant and skillful officer of the United States Army, Major General Irvin McDowell, in passing over it the other day, on his way to San Francisco, was pleased to say of it: "It is the finest road I ever traveled on, either in Europe or America."

The road has additional praises to those of its excellence of construction, natural location, and perfect equipment, the esprit du corps of its employes lends a charm in their care, attention and gentlemanly department, which adds the cap sheaf, grace, to its material perfection.

For the year past it was a road without a terminal detention. Its greatly increasing through travel and immense way business will soon require a double track.—Republican, Dec. 7th, 1878.

Balky Horses.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals puts forth the following rules for the treatment of balky horses, which will bear reproduction:

1. Pat the horse upon the neck; examine the harness carefully, first on one side and then on the other speaking encouragingly while doing so, then jump into the wagon and give the word go; generally he will obey.

2. A teamster in Maine says he can start the worst balky horse by taking him out of the shafts and making him go round in a circle till he is giddy. If the first dance of this sort doesn't cure him the second will.

3. To cure a balky horse, simply place one hand over the horse's nose and shut off his wind till he wants to go, and then let him go.

4. The brain of the horse seems to entertain but one idea at a time; therefore, continued whipping only confirms his stubborn resolve. If you can by any means give him a new subject to think of you will generally have no trouble in starting him. A simple remedy is to take a couple of turns of stout twine around the fore-leg, just below the knee, tight enough for the horse to feel, and tie in a bow-knot. At the first check, he will go dancing off, and after going a short distance you can get out and remove the string to prevent injury to the tendon in your further drive.

5. Take the tail of the horse between the hind legs, and tie it by a cord to the saddle-girth.

6. Tie a string around the horse's ear, close to his head.

THE LIFE AND TRAVELS OF GEN. GRANT. By J. T. HEADLEY, author of "Napoleon and His Marshals," Sherman and His Campaigns," &c. Profusely Illustrated. Philadelphia: Hubbard Bros.

This is a neatly printed, handsomely bound and finely illustrated volume of 550 pages, 251 of which are devoted to the history of General Grant, and the balance to his travels around the world, being brought down to the period of his arrival on the Pacific coast. The well established reputation of Mr. Headley as a man of letters and historian is a perfect guarantee of the merit of this work. The historical portion devoted to the life of General Grant is said to be authentic, and that relating to his travels is equally so, all being prepared by a facile and ornate pen. This renders the work a valuable adjunct to the library and a pleasant companion for the fireside. It comprises the life of a famous American, and takes the reader over a series of travels, scenes and incidents unequaled in the history of any man living or dead.

Tons of Grapes And Their Use.

It is astonishing to see the large quantity of grapes of the finest quality, and large clusters, that are each year mashed up for wine, at the vineyards of A. Speer, Passaic, N. J. Mr. Speer buys large quantities of grapes, and also raises the Oporto grape, from which he makes his celebrated wine, without the admixture of alchohol or spirits. This wine is found by careful analysis to be the best wine in market for invalids and debilitated persons. It is called Speer's Port Grape Wine, and is sold by druggists. It is extensively used by churches for the communion table. Excellent for fatigued females. 48-2t

December Magazines.

From the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay St., N. Y., we have received the Westminster and Quarterly Reviews, both of which are excellent as a whole and in detail. The former contains a fine article upon that subject ever new with such dreadful interest—The Indian Mutiny. The same periodical also contains three biographical-critical articles on "Cetour Lamarmora," "Bismarck" and "Lord Brougham." The remaining articles are: The Federation of the English Empire, The Law of Real Property, The Bohemians and Slovaks, India and our Colonial Empire, and the usual reviews of contemporary literature.

THE London Quarterly Review offers to its readers the following articles, all of which we think will be interesting to the general reader: Pascal and his Editors, The College of Physicians, Albert Durer, The Founder of Norwich Cathedral, The Weather and its Prediction, Henry IV. of France, The Submission of the Clergy, and Principles at Stake.

THE Domestic Monthly for December. This carefully conducted magazine occupies a place among the current publications of the day not filled by any of its contemporaries. Its fashion department employs the best literary and artistic talent attainable, the reading matter being prepared by ladies who devote their whole time to obtaining the necessary data from the many sources available in the commercial metropolis of America. The review of existing fashions and forthcoming novelties in coats, cloaks, wraps and the varied costumes of the season, must prove highly attractive, interesting and advantageous to every lady reader. This is true of those who live in the centres of social activity as well as those who enjoy the free and more natural life of the less densely populated regions of the country. Every lady will find that it is true economy to take advantage of the taste and experience presented each month in this excellent publication. The space devoted to wearing apparel, millinery, coiffures, etc., is supplemented by a department comprising decorative art and fancy needlework, with explanatory cuts and illustrations wherever these are needed.

The literary department opens in the December number with an account of etching, the practical revival of which is at present so prominent a feature of contemporary art. This is accompanied by an original etching by the late H. Carmiencke which has never before been published, and of which no more impressions can be had, as the plates are worn out in printing this edition of the Domestic Monthly. Then follows the first part of a serial by Helen Campbell, which will be found fully equal to the stories which have earned her literary reputation. An illustration is given of the famous "Willow Pattern China," and with it is published the story of the design as it is told to Chinese children in the "Flowery Land." Comments on passing events and on the art and literature of the day will be found in their special departments of the magazine.

THE Domestic Monthly is published by Blake & Company, 853 and 855 Broadway, New York, at $1.50 per year, inclusive of pattern premium. Specimen copies, 15 cents.

A CAPITAL number, and full of interesting and useful information, is the American Agriculturist for Dec. 1st. A hundred or more articles and items, giving practical hints and suggestions, are illustrated with nearly a hundred engravings. A remarkable article, with accurate sketches of 21 new forms of Barbed Fencing, will interest every owner of a farm or village lot. A variety of humbug schemes are shown up. An important table of many sorts of feeding stuffs, and their comparative value. There are fine illustrations of a Farmer's Christmas Visit; also Ice Houses and their filling; the Jack-Ass Rabbits; of Spiders and their Webs; of Mildews; of Christmas Ornaments, and a multitude of other things too numerous to speak of particularly. The 38th annual volume begins now. Terms, $1.50 a year. Single numbers, 15 cents. A specimen copy, 6 cts. Orange Judd Company, Publishers, 245 Broadway, New York.

Winter-Flowering Plants.

Although nearly all the plants in general use will thrive in the temperature of an ordinary sitting-room, where the average of night and day may be sixty degrees, yet for such as have the convenience, it is best to divide them into two classes. The first, and the largest class, are those requiring a moderate temperature, say fifty degrees at night, a range of forty-five or fifty degrees may be allowed without injury, with, say, ten degrees higher in daytime. The second class are what are known as tropical or hothouse plants, and will thrive best in a night temperature of not less than sixty degrees, with ten to fifteen degrees higher in daytime. After the plants have started to grow fully, if grown in a sitting-room window, they should be turned every three or four days, so that all portions of the plants will receive the light; for this purpose the circular or revolving plant stand is very convenient. When the green fly, or plant louse (aphis), appears, syringe or dip the plant in a decoction of tobacco water, made to about the color of strong tea;" or first wet the plant, and then dust it over with snuff or tobacco dust—anything in the shape of tobacco is quickly destructive to plant lice, and it had better be used as a preventative rather than a cure.—Peter Henderson.

THE SUN FOR 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 it will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controlling its daily make-up. It has now a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense inspired by genuine American principles and tempered by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is, and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party, clique, religious organization, or interest. It is for all, but owes none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is unfettered by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save those which may be had by any purchaser with two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, prize fools and despises humbugs of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of letting the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government which the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with corrupt, extravagant and incident Administration intrenched at Washington.—THE SUN did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. THE SUN will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and to great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the Constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of forty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month or $7.70 a year, postage prepaid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, post-paid.

The price of the Weekly SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1.00 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10.00 we will send an extra copy free. Address,

AGENTS WANTED AT ONCE
FOR THE ONLY RICHLY ILLUSTRATED, AUTHENTIC, LOW-PRICED WORK FULLY DESCRIBING THE GREAT TOUR OF
GEN. GRANT AROUND THE WORLD!
BY HON. J. T. HEADLEY,
the prince of descriptive authors. Lose no time, as the demand is simply immense and territory being rapidly taken. It will outsell any other book. In weighing the question of engaging in the sale of a book, the most important consideration is
ITS SELLING QUALITIES,
and secondly, the terms that are granted agents, because the profit to be made selling a book depends largely upon the general desire for such a work. There is a notable illustration of this: From Maine to California there is the most intense desire to procure an authentic illustrated work descriptive of the remarkable career of this man, who has risen from the humblest walks of life, led the mighty armies of the Union to victory, filled for eight years the highest office in the gift of the American people, and who has for the past two years been the honored guest of Kings, Princes, Emperors, and Statesmen throughout the world. Again, there is a widespread and increasing interest in other nations, and a desire to know more of their forms of government, religious views, strange customs, etc., which renders this book peculiarly attractive to the people at this time, and hence remarkably salable. Thirdly, the book is so elegantly gotten up and so richly illustrated (being printed on a beautifully toned and super-calendered paper) as to be a strong attraction of itself. Fourthly, in point of author ship Mr. Headley is so widely known, therefore, the incomparable advantages which it offers now for QUICK SALES AND LARGE PROFITS. Choice territory is being rapidly taken up. Over 2,500 agents already appointed, 5,000 more are needed to canvass the United States. If you want a chance and mean business, act at once. For full particulars, address
HUBBARD BROS., 730 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
CAUTION! Beware of a catch-penny work being circulated, made with the scissors out of newspaper letters, wretchedly printed and illustrated. The ONLY CHEAP work possessing the merit of FIRST-CLASS AUTHORSHIP, the TRUE test of value, is by the HON. J. T. HEADLEY, and is MADE UPON HONOR THROUGHOUT.
THINK OF THIS! Upon the announcement of Hon. J. T. Headley as author of this work 5,000 persons applied for agencies. 2,500 have been appointed. Book is just issued, and 10,000 are already ordered. The greatest rush known for years.

A POPULAR ERROR!

Many suppose that they must pay higher prices on Chestnut Street than in less fashionable streets of the city.

To a very large class we have already demonstrated the falsity of this impression.

We buy Directly from the Manufacturers, and therefore there is only one profit between the consumer and the manufacturer.

Disposing of large quantities of goods, we can afford to and do sell at moderate profits.

Our prices are in many instances even below those of Wholesale Jobbing Houses.

To convince those skeptical on this point, all we ask is that they call and examine our immense stock, and compare our prices with those of such goods elsewhere; and if after doing so they are not thoroughly satisfied that our goods are not only cheaper but much better in assortment, and more correct in taste, we do not expect their patronage.

CHESTNUT STREET IS THE PLACE TO BUY DRY GOODS.

Our Counters are Loaded with Bargains in the most desirable fabrics and colors.

Over Thirty Years' Experience as dealers in the finest grades of Foreign and Domestic Dress Goods gives us a great advantage over houses of less experience.

As proof of this statement we invite attention to the following lots:

French Shooda Cloths, 35c.
These are a most desirable fabric, and all of the newest shades in solid colors.

Camel's Hair, 36 inches wide, 37½c.
This is a most excellent imitation of Fine Camel's Hair, and they cannot be manufactured at the price for which we are now selling them.

French Armure, 45 inches wide, 75c.
These goods are well worth $1. Can be worn as suits, or with brighter combinations.

French Pekin Stripes, 45 inches, 87½c.
A beautiful new article of splendid quality, dyed in the newest shades to our special order, and remarkably low for such handsome goods.

French Foule, 36 inches wide, 55c.
These were bought at a great bargain, and we offer them correspondingly low.

French Novelties, 46 inches, 55c.
French Novelties, 46 inches, 65c.
Both these lots would be considered cheap at $1.00.

French Basket Weave Plaids, 46 inches, $1.25.
In Dark Cloth Colorings for Suits. These goods are selling at $1.75, and considered Cheap.

Novelties in All-Wool Suitings, 25c.
Four cases, In Medium and Dark Colors.

French Momie Cloth, 46 inches 87½c.
New and Decidedly Handsome. The colorings are all new, to our own order.

Chevron Camel's Hair, 46 inches, $1.25.
This is a very stylish looking article and very popular for Walking Suits, and not to be found elsewhere, as they are confined to us.

—During the winter of 1828 the Valentines, of Bellefonte, ran an ark load of iron to Harrisburg every month. Weather prophets say the present winter will be much like that, the prediction being based on the thaw that took place after the hard freeze in November.—Altoona Tribune.

—The old ladies of Philipsburg have been having a serious time of it. Two of them lately had the misfortune to break some of the bones. The ladies in question may be some of those old folks whose hearts are as young as ever, and they may have been trying to "skip as a lamb" when they met with their mishap.

—Our borough authorities have been invited to attend Harrisburg's reception to General Grant. Now if we were only on City Dad. Of course the righteous Democrats of the council will do just as the Gospel according to Meek tells them to do, and will not accept. O no, they'd shun a pass from a Republican, as they would a viper. Now Johnny dear, and you, too, Henry, do just as your good schoolmaster tells you. But when we come to think, it occurs to us that if all our borough authorities but the Democrats go down to Harrisburg, there will be mighty few stay-at-homes. Remember last February, Joseph, and consider.

Fatal Accident at Snow Shoe.

A boy about ten or twelve years of age, Henry Baum by name, was instantly killed last Friday afternoon by being caught between the drawheads of two cars, which crushed his head to a jelly. The cars flying back after meeting suddenly, dropped the lad upon the track where the wheels of one car passed over his head. The lad was an adopted son or ward of Mr. Jacob Ropp, but his father formerly lived in Mauch Chunk, although a telegram was sent to that place and no answer was received.

The manner of the accident was this: Henry and a young companion were playing about the two coal cars mentioned, which stood uncoupled a short distance from each other. Henry stood between them, and tried to make the coupling while the other little fellow unbraked the car standing farther up the grade. This being done, the car moved swiftly down the grade and young Baum was caught and killed as we have stated. Boys, be careful how you play about the cars. Better let them alone altogether.

—Splendid cashmeres 25cts. a yard at Lyon & Co's.

—It must be confessed that the spelling bee at the Wigwam was not the most successful entertainment of the season. A number of people were present but things did not work very smoothly, and the whole affair was rather dry than otherwise. Lawyer Keller was fairly gorged with dictionary words, and could not be put down with foreign jaw-breakers, or anything else that twisteth the tongue of man. Old Daniel of lion fame is nowhere alongside of him. We have not the least doubt you are a good man, Colonel, Dan, a heap better than we are, but come, now, just own up, didn't you use to study the dictionary on Sunday?

—Two former students of the Academy, and State College, H. B. Woolston or "Dick," and Harry Geisse, won distinction for themselves in Philadelphia, last Thursday. They are both students of Bryant & Stratton's Commercial College. The attendants of that College held an athletic contest on the Young American cricket grounds, on the day spoken of, and H. Geisse won the prize for the best standing jump; viz., 9 feet, and Woolston made the best running jump, scoring 13 feet.

—Rev. James Calder, D. D., President of the Pennsylvania State College has resigned his position as the head of that institution. Dr. Calder is an able man, and his labors have been arduous and unceasing for the good of the college. By his retirement our farmers will lose an able advocate, and Pomona Grange its lecturer. It will be no easy matter for the Grange to find a worthy successor to Dr. Calder. There is some talk of Prof. Wickersham's being offered the Presidency when it becomes vacant.

—The men who were arrested and detained here last summer on suspicion of being horse thieves, were lately sent by Judge Orvis to the penitentiary from Clearfield county, where they again displayed their weakness for horse flesh. At their trial it was discovered that they were from Tompkins county, N. Y., instead of Tioga county, this State, as they alleged when here.

—We were unable to be present at the Bush House dinner on Thanksgiving Day, and our honored senior so amply supplied himself with all the good things spread before him that we were unable to get a word out of him with regard to it. But we must say the effect upon the press has not yet passed away. Ever since that eventful day the local scribe of the Democrat has been able to cast a shadow, and Joe Furey's better-half now says, he as breaks into a smile while slumbering, "Poor fellow, he's dreaming of Thanksgiving Day, and thinks he's at the Bush House."

—The Sheridan Band, of Tyrone, had the biggest kind of a good time lately. They went in a special car to Fowler, on the 26th ult., and were met with a princely reception by the chief of that little principality, Mr. John T. Fowler, who with his good lady of the manor, made the boys as comfortable as possible, outwardly and inwardly. Mr. Fowler's is one of the best places in the world to have a good time.

—That part of the Milesburg Baptist church nearest heaven now looks very well indeed. The steeple has has been repaired and painted lately. Those Milesburg people have an eye to business in their church repairs—they fix up at the right end.

Tribute of Respect.

The committee appointed by the Commander at an informal meeting of Gregg Post, No. 95, held on Monday evening last, to draft a memorial record of comrade William P. Wilson, respectfully report the following:

Our comrade, whose sudden death occurred near Milesburg on Saturday evening, Nov. 29, 1879, was a brave and worthy soldier of Company "G," 51st Regiment, of Pennsylvania. He enlisted in the service of his country on the 12th day of September, 1861, and with his regiment participated in the battles of Roanoke Island, Camden, Chantilly, Bull Run the second, South Mountain and Antietam. For bravery at Warrenton Junction in conveying ammunition to the Durell's Battery through a heavy fire, he was placed in charge of a wagon train, which withdrew him to a large extent from the regiment, but where his experience and capability often extorted the praise of his superiors. After performing all his duties faithfully as a soldier, he was honorably discharged by reason of the expiration of his term of enlistment, on the 16th of October, 1864, when he resumed his former pursuits of industry; and it was while he was returning from employment in Clearfield county to visit his family, residing near Bellefonte, that he met his death. He will be long remembered by his comrades for his native wit and unfailing good humor. One of the earliest to associate with us, he is among the first to be taken away from us; and it is with a feeling of deep sadness that we record his early demise. He was born in Centre county on the 5th of October, 1834, and leaves a widow and four children—John, aged 20 years; Cora, aged 14 years; Thomas, aged 12 years, and Morris, aged 11 years, whom we are bound by solemn obligations to console, care for and protect. Our comrade was buried at 2½ o'clock, P. M. on Tuesday, Dec. 24, in the Quaker grave yard, in Bellefonte, with the Ritual ceremonies of the Grand Army, and with the honors of war.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN B. LINN,
JAMES FULTON,
WM. T. SAYLOR,
Committee.

—If any one supposed that we intended to appear as the advocate of our Court, he and his spokesman, the Watchman, were very much mistaken. We are in no way under obligations to Judge Orvis, and never expect to be. As far as we know we have never been the recipients of any favors from the gentleman whom Mr. Furey facetiously styles "his Honor?" But we took the ground that there were two sides to this as in every other case, and tried to present them both as fairly as it lay in our power. We were not aware that the above named paper always spoke the immaculate truth, especially when, as in this case, it was undoubtedly influenced by political spite and personal pique. Under these circumstances, assuredly we would not fall in with the line of lambs who have so meekly and unquestioningly followed their leader. When we desire a shepherd, it is our present opinion we will call upon some other than the editorial dignitaries of the Watchman. The Court, beyond a doubt acted unwisely in this instance, if it did not transcend its authority, as we now have reason to believe. This is, however, our unbiased opinion, and our reasons for not unqualifiedly accepting the statement of the Watchman, in toto, we have stated; and they will be understood and considered just, we have no doubt.

A Journal of Unequaled Merit.

The PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL GAZETTE stands pre-eminent in Western Pennsylvania as a newspaper.

As a Republican organ it is outspoken, fearless and conscientious, and is prepared to strike vigorous and telling blows in defense of the party during the approaching Presidential canvass.

The coming session of Congress, and the debates which will follow between the Republican and Democratic leaders, will be interesting and exciting, and those who wish to be fully informed on the questions of the day should subscribe at once.

The daily issue contains the most reliable financial and market reports, and is the leading authority among business men. Terms, $8.00 per year.

The Weekly is a large thirty-six column paper, full of general and miscellaneous news, market quotations, etc. Terms, $1.50 per year. Sample copies sent free. Address COMMERCIAL GAZETTE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

—The next census will show beyond the semblance of a doubt that no young lady who in the past ten years has worn banged hair has secured a husband. The banged beings will in a few years consequently become extinct.

—People say that the Milesburg "early worm" has gone South for the winter. Maybe that's why the people of ye ancient village do not get up till nine o'clock in the morning.

A Good Newspaper is the Cheapest Literature.

It is a remarkable fact that the general appreciation in prices consequent upon the revival of prosperity throughout the United States finds an exception in the cost of literature of every kind. This is emphatically an era of cheap literature, and newspapers, after all, are the cheapest of literature. A journal like the Philadelphia Weekly Times, the fifty-two numbers issued in a year being equivalent to several octavo volumes, is easily within the reach of the most depleted purse. The Weekly Times is a newspaper, but sometimes more than a newspaper. While all the news of the day is fully covered by special correspondents stationed at all the great centres of population, and all other approved agencies for the collection of news are employed, equal pains are taken to occupy other fields of intellectual activity. Fiction, poetry, sketches of travel, adventure and biography, essays in popular science, the latest aspects of modern thought, are given adequate treatment from week to week. All topics of political, commercial, religious, social and general interests are fearlessly discussed in the editorial columns; the critical departments, musical, dramatic and literary, are in competent hands; matters of domestic economy have special attention, and the press of all countries is made to pay tribute in its best things for the entertainment of American readers. These assertions are broad, but they are justified by the nearly unanimous verdict of the press and people that the Philadelphia Weekly Times is the best family newspaper now published. In calling attention to the remarkable liberal terms which are offered to subscribers for the year 1880—a year that is likely to be memorable in American history—we feel that we are doing good service to all who wish to enjoy during that year the visits of a newspaper which, while having all the characteristics of the advanced journalism of the day, is so thoroughly imbued with a wholesome spirit that it may be admitted into any family with certainty that it will become a favorite alike with fathers, mothers and children. The Weekly Times is now offered at $1.25 per copy when sent in clubs of twenty, and for $6 three copies together with "The Annals of the War," a volume of 800 pages, beautifully illustrated, and sent postage free to any address.

—A young pedagogue and an ambitious student lately buckled on their armor and went forth of an evening to monopolize the smiles of fair maiden, who has of late been making Bellefonte her home. But they got the wrong directions and wandered into her cousins' home where they waited long and earnestly for the appearance of their hearts' desire. But she came not; she was in the other house, and with chagrin upon their faces the young fellows beat a blushing retreat. They don't go out to see the ladies any more, just now.

—The B. E. V. R.R. directors at a late meeting recommended the erecting of a new depot in this place, and the construction of a Y, here. If this last had been done long ago, the company would have saved several dollars by it. Only six accidents have happened during the last ten years within a half mile of each other, between here and Milesburg, several of them directly referable to the running of engines backward. It is the hope of the community that both of these recommendations will be acted upon favorably.

—Almost a murder took place at the Slope Mines, Houtzdale, last Friday evening. The drivers were on a strike and the rule of the day was that the miners do the driving. This the drivers resented and a quarrel ensued, in which one Lockert shot with a pistol a man named Hollerin, the ball striking him in the forehead, but the wound was not fatal. Hollerin was taken to Philipsburg, and his assailant sent to jail in default of bail.

—We have remarked that whenever the Watchman, has cause to notice a visit from some particularly pleasant and affable gentleman, it always has to wind up with admitting with very poor grace that he is a Republican. They ought to be right glad to receive a call from decent people now and then.

—Has the tide of good times swept over the journalistic light of Millheim? He has added to himself a new residence. Maybe something will yet happen to us.

—Pennsylvania stock has "resumed." It lately reached par, and shareholders are happy and smiling.

—Last Sunday's monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was one of unusual interest and success. All available space was filled to crowding, and for a time it seemed as if an over-flow meeting would be necessary. A quartette of colored singers rendered in very good style a couple of pieces from Gospel Hymns, No. 3. This is a new feature in the meetings of young men, and its success is such as to warrant continuance. The service was almost entirely one of Bible reading and song under the leadership of Mr. Gephart. The Bible was made to explain itself in a very interesting manner and every selection of music was unusually appropriate. It would seem that this shows the power of the scriptures to become their own commentator. Not a word of comment, exortation or explanation was offered by the leader or anyone. Yet every thing read seemed most wondrously clear and plain to the minds of all who listened. Let us have more of these services.

—"The Condition of Successful Church Growth" was the morning theme last Sabbath, of Rev. Mr. De Long, the new pastor of the German Reformed Church. The discourse was peculiarly fitting as a pastor's first to a new congregation, and was listened to by a goodly company, representing many phases of religious thought. Of pleasing manners and reflective mind, a zealous churchman, yet most catholic in spirit, Mr. De Long promises much to the Reformed Church, to whose steady development under her new shepherd, we look forward with interest. To the hearty welcome already extended Mr. De Long by his own people, we heartily add our own, trusting he may in due time reap rich fruitage.

—Holiday goods at Zeller's drug store.

—Mr. Budd Thompson, the son of John I. Thompson, Esq., of Martha Furnace, met with an accident last week, that might have easily have been fatal. Mr. Thompson was attempting to couple two freight cars which were being shifted at the station, when he slipped and his foot, we understand was caught between the cars, and quite badly crushed.

—Imported canary birds at Zeller's.

—The African M. E. Church is holding "big meetin." There are services every afternoon and evening, and the night meetings are kept up very late, the climax being reached sometimes near the small hours, when the noise is terrific; and the next day our people often have cause to complain that their good man-servant or handmaid is very drooping and worn out.

—Fine pocket books, cheap, at Zeller's.

—It is doubtless due to our stupidity, and lack of appreciative faculties, but still we are unable to comprehend the force of wantonly villifying and blackening the character of an antagonist in court, particularly when that antagonist has a character fair and honored among his fellows. Those indulging in this practice certainly do not thereby enhance the respect held for them either as gentlemen or representatives of the Christian religion.

—Celluloid sets, large assortment, at Zeller's.

—Huntingdon Presbytery Sunday-school Convention met last week in Tyrone. Bellefonte was represented by Mr. Sommerville and Mrs. W. P. Wilson. The convention is reported as being successful and well attended. between 80 and 90 delegates answering at roll-call.

—Diatchite sets, something new, at Zeller's.

—See the new advertisement of A. J. Cruse, the well-known tobacconist whose pretty shop in the Bush House is a favorite resort for all lovers of the weed. Mr. Cruse's cigars have a reputation not confined to our town; they are well known in various parts of the State, and justly celebrated for their excellence.

—Handsome new style bird cages, at Zeller's.

—The house of Mr. Wm. Bordell, living near Allenville, Mifflin county, was destroyed by fire on the 1st instant. Mrs. Bordell had gone to the house of a neighbor, leaving her two small children at home. It is supposed they played with fire and thus set fire to the house, which was soon a mass of flames, burning them to death.

—Beautiful—those barrels of cologne at Zeller's.

—Our telegraph messenger, Thad. Longwell, took a turn at typhoid fever last week, but he is now all right and at his post again.

A SIX-SHOT REVOLVER FREE.—The famous American Model Six-Shot Bulldozer Revolver is made of select metal and neatly finished. The cylinder revolves when the hammer is raised. Can be loaded in an instant. Just the thing for tramps and burglars. Having perfected arrangements for an immense quantity of these revolvers, we are enabled to make the following and heretofore unparalleled offer. To introduce the Mammouth Guest into new homes, we offer to send an elegant art premium and one revolver free, to any one who will send 75 cents for a six months' trial subscription. The Mammouth Guest is one of the largest papers published in the world. The family favorite and home paper for the million. It has 16 pages, 64 columns, crowded with illustrated articles, stories, poetry, sketches, wit, humor, fun, recipes, etc., etc., by the ablest writers. Our sole purpose in making this great offer is to introduce our paper, well knowing we can secure hundreds of subscribers in almost any town. The offer is open only 6 days. —We haven't heard of anybody who has exhibited his "cussedness" more effectively than the dastard who last week cut to pieces the new buggy of Mr. Schreckengoss, of Pleasant Gap, while that gentleman was away from his house. A cat-o'-nine-tailing would not be too good for the mean sneak of a hound who did this thing.

The Markets.

December 9, 1879.

There is no abatement in the activity of our merchants to secure the lion's share of trade and profits are hewed to the line on all classes of goods.

GRAIN.

The market for wheat is very firm. We note an advance of five cents per bushel during the week. The demand for the coarser grains is rather weak.

At Philadelphia wheat continues in steady demand, and prices were a fraction higher. 25,000 bushels Pennsylvania red sold at $1 49@1 50; Pennsylvania amber at $1 50@1 51.

RYE—There was very little movement. Small sales at 87@88c ₱ bushel.

Corn was firmer; 58c for rejected, and 60@62c ₱ bushel for yellow; new yellow at 54@58, and new white at 58c ₱ bushel.

Oats were firmly held, and sold in lots at 48@49c for white, and 44@46c for mixed, and choice white at 50c.

SEEDS.

At Philadelphia cloverseed was unchaned. Sales are reported at 9@9½c ₱ lb; the last sale of flaxseed was a $1 60 ₱ bush.

At New York Calcutta linseed was dull and nominal; the spot supply small; quoted at $2 87½. Cloverseed firm at 8¾@9¾c.

Orville Grant, brother of the ex-President, has again become insane, and has been sent to Kirkbride's hospital, Philadelphia.

A national jail has been recommended by the U. S. Circuit Court and jury for the confinement of convicts from the national courts.

It is said the P. & E. railroad intends laying a double track from Milton to Watsontown as soon as navigation is closed on the canal.

The Philadelphia mint is coining eagles at the rate of $200,000 daily. It is expected that the total coinage of this month will reach $10,000,000.

Hayden, the man charged with poisoning his sister in Worcester, Mass., has been acquitted. The verdict was received with cheers from the audience.

The fishing season closed with a heavy record of losses, thirty-two vessels, valued at over $130,000, and 260 men having sailed from port to return no more.

The Governor of St. Petersburg has ordered every householder to display a red lamp before his door nightly, bearing the number of the house.

Mayor Prince, the Butler candidate, was re-elected in Boston on the 9th by a plurality of 2,763. Ladies voted at this election for the first time.

A thirty-thousand dollar fire took place at Little Rock, Ark., on the 14th. Ten horses, a number of carriages, and about 100 bales of cotton were destroyed.

The German Government is going to try the experiment of running the railroads of the country, and has lately made the purchase of several lines in the Empire.

American trade is gaining ground in Mexico. The French merchants are greatly alarmed over the great influx of United States manufactures, and the consequent inroads upon their profits.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad is building an extension northward to terminate at Johnstown, the object being to get a share of Johnstown's large carrying trade, and thus to compete with the Pennsylvania road.

FIGHTING has again been commenced in Afghanistan, and the gravest results are feared. Gen. Roberts is fighting for life. His whole force of 5,000 men is pitted against the entire Afghan army, the strength of which is unknown, but it is admitted to be 10,000 strong. Tribes are rising on every side. Candahar is also threatened by 11,000 troops advancing from Herat. The Candaharees are likewise restless. The Times urges the Government to abandon Afghanistan after crushing the resistance. The Standard gives the same counsel. The public are uneasy from the daily accumulating evidence of merciless cruelties perpetrated on the Afghans.

The number of immigrants at the port of New York in November was 14,600. The arrivals since January 1st are 125,000, an increase of 49,705 over the same period in 1878.

The New York postoffice, in one day last week, sent by outgoing steamers 116,228 letters. Over 5,000 foreign money orders were issued, and they averaged a little over $12 each.

On last Wednesday a mad dog dashed through the streets of Delaware City, Del., and after an 8 miles, run-of-rumbling fights it was at last shot, but not until the mayor and twenty dogs had felt its rabid fangs. Treatment for the latter is in the air.

—The melancholy days have come
The saddest of the year;
Of buckwheat cakes and scarlet rash,
And five-cent lager beer.

Reaped in the hollows of the grove,
The autumn leaves lie dead;
And now the hoarse-throated ranges
Are fifteen cents a head.

HISTORY OF CENTRE CO!

I have purchased the entire edition of "THE INDUSTRIES AND INSTITUTIONS OF CENTRE COUNTY," lately published by Ritchey & Maynard. This is the only Book printed which gives a History of the Industries, Enterprises and People of our County.

☞ It it of value to all who live or ever have lived, or have any interest in old Centre.

In it can be found a Complete List of the Soldiers who went from this County to the War. This, of itself, is worth the price of a dozen Books to any Soldier.

There is also a complete list of all Members of the Bar who have practiced in our County, with the date of their admission.

A History of the Churches, Distinguished Citizens, Schools, a complete History of the State College up to the present time, Agricultural Productions, Newspapers, Banks, &c. In fact, a complete history from the time Logan, the Mingo Chief, walked in undisturbed quiet over our Hills and along our Beautiul Streams to the present time.

☞ This work I will sell at Publishers' Prices, viz: $3 00 per volume. Orders by mail promptly attended to, and postage paid by me. Address all orders to Great political excitement prevails in England. Gladstone gains in popularity daily. His receptions throughout the country are perfect ovations. The liberal party is solid again, and the overthrow of the present administration is imminent.

The cause of rancidity in butter is due to the fact that the buttermilk or the water used in washing the butter, as is the practice of some dairymen, is not all worked out, water in butter being a leading cause of putrefaction. It never results, as some seem to suppose, because it is not sufficiently salted.

A Novelty in Roses.

Buds of the new striped Tea Rose "American Banner," were worn for the first time in New York, by the ladies wearing bouquets at the great fair of the Seventh Regiment, on the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 30. This pretty among flowers from its novelty and scarcity is likely to become in great demand this winter; but as it can only yet be supplied in small quantities it will cost more than its weight in gold.

—For would-be weather prophets: A cheap and true barometer: Put a small quantity of finely pulverized alum in a long, half-ounce vial, and fill it with spirits of wine. When the atmosphere is dry and clear, the spirits will be as clear as crystal; but on the approach of rain or bad weather, the alum will rise in the centre in the form of a spiral cloud, which is an infallible indication of rain or bad weather.—Ex.

General Grant visited Cincinnati on the 11th inst., going to that city from Louisville. A perfect ovation was tendered the party, the citizens turning out in larger numbers than ever before. Hon. Benjamin Eggleston delivered the address of welcome, to which the General made a characteristic response. The decorations were on a most magnificent scale. A brilliant banquet in the Grand Hotel closed the day.

Surveys are being made to ascertain whether the Susquehanna river cannot be made navigable. Engineer Alericks, of Harrisburg, has been making soundings, and says the river can be made to render possible the passage of steamboats. From 15 to 20 feet of water has been found in long stretches, during the present low stage of water, and the small bars connecting these channels can be cut through and dredged. The facts will be reported to Congress for action.

Ex-Senator Alexander Ramsey, of Minnesota, has been nominated by the President to be Secretary of War, vice Secretary McCrary, who has resigned the position in the cabinet for the office of United States Judge in the Eighth circuit. The Senate unanimously confirmed the nomination. Secretary Ramsey was born in Pennsylvania in the year 1815, and has been thrice elected to Congress, a Governor of the territory of Minnesota, Mayor of St. Paul, Governor of the State, and United States Senator from 1863 to 1875.

—There has been running in this and a number of other county papers, two local advertisements from two parties giving their names as N. W. Hunt and J. A. Roarty, for a Bible and a magazine, the Mammouth Guest. These parties who appeared to have the semblance of respectability have lately come to grief and are now shown up as swindlers of the first water, as will be seen from the following from the Philadelphia Record:

Two well-dressed young men, giving the names of N. W. Hunt and J. A. Roarty, having an office at 247 Elbow lane, a small thoroughfare running from Third to Bank streets, were taken in custody yesterday with a young woman, said to be Hunt's wife, on the charge of using the mail for improper purposes. It appeared that they had been sending advertisements to country papers of an elegant Bible, to be sold for $1, but "really worth $15, with a superb work of art, entitled the Lord's Prayer." Postal Agent Barrett testified at the hearing before Commissioner Gibbons yesterday afternoon that the Bibles were worth about 15 cents. The parties were bound over for trial.
